■ About the project

The European Thematic Network Project 'AEHESIS' is coordinated by the Institute of European Sport Development & Leisure Studies at the German Sport University Cologne on behalf of the European Network of Sport Science, Education & Employment (ENSSEE).

The triennial (2003-2006) European-wide sport related project is funded by the Socrates Programme of the European Commission.

■ Objective of the project

The objective of 'AEHESIS' is to align a European higher educational structure in the area of sport science by focusing on two major aspects:

Firstly, to integrate programmes and time frames of the educational structures - and, secondly, to ensure that the identified structures relate to the needs of the labour market in the four main areas: Sport Management, Health & Fitness, Physical Education and Sport Coaching.

In this regard the project has especially paid attention to the Bologna Process implemented by the European Commission as well as the methodologies and results of the 'TUNING' project.

■ Benefit of the project

Concrete benefit for all stakeholders involved in Higher Education in sport will be:

The use of the best practice curriculum model designed individually for each designated sport science area and developed from the findings of the „AEHESIS Curriculum Questionnaire“.

And, secondly, the use of a high quality database reflecting all programmes offered in the European sport science sector based on the information collected via the „AEHESIS Institutional Questionnaire“

■ About the conference

The third year of the project will be completed at the end of September 2006. Therefore, the results of the project will be presented at the 3rd Annual AEHESIS Conference in Prague/Czech Republic on 1&2 September 2006.

All persons interested in the impact of the Bologna Process on Education in Sport are kindly invited to attend the conference – not only to discuss the results of the project but also to meet together and to get into contact for further activities.

■ Conference venue

The conference will be held and participants will be accommodated in the „andel's hotel Prague“, Stroupeznického 21, Praha 5, 150 00 Prague (www.andelshotel.com).

■ Programme & fee

The conference programme as well as further information can be downloaded on the project's web page at: www.aehesis.com -> „conferences“

There is no particular conference fee.
